

THIS DAY'S DOINGS.

Mr. E. P. Adams will sell at 12 noon, at sales room, the well established bakery, buildings, etc. of Love Bros.

AN OLD BURIAL GROUND.

"Man lives, dies, and is forgotten." This is true of the majority of mankind, not all. A few names of the long gone past live in the world's remembrance to-day, and will live to the last generation; but the "great multitude" of the unnumbered dead are forgotten. This train of thought was induced by a spectacle we witnessed a few days ago. It is briefly this:—In Upper Palama, near the dairy called by that name, on the summit of a little hill, is an old burying ground. There is nothing on the surface to mark it as such—no mounds, no enclosures, no headstones, nothing. In the summer it presents an aspect of barrenness and desolation; in the rainy season it is green with grass, which springs up and is eaten off by cattle that roam over the spot. One side of the little hill has been dug down, and the mixture of earth and black sand, of which it was composed, taken away; and so near has the digging and removing process approached to the graves that the ends of some of the coffins are left without covering. Since the hand of man stayed its ruthless proceedings the winds and rains continue the work. At the present time portions of five or six coffins are bare, with the ends decayed or broken off, and the fleshless bones within exposed to view. These disjointed skeletons were once the seat of animation, passion, emotion, sentiment, and the vehicle of thought and action; but long ago they came to the end of living, reached the home of the dead, and there they are unremembered. In life they were loved, in death they were lamented, in the grave they are forgotten. If not forgotten, why so neglected? Perhaps, those who were their kindred and friends have gone to their long homes, too, or if they have living lineal descendants, those descendants may not know who their ancestors were. One fact is plain, these mortal remains of human entities, lying half exposed in this old desecrated burial ground, in Upper Palama, have been forgotten. Is there no one among the living who will show so much respect for the dead as to re-enter these bleaching bones? This may be considered a legitimate undertaking for the Poola Association. No one could reasonably complain if the Government took the matter in hand. Decency—not to mention any nobler sentiment—demands that something be done by somebody.

CHRISTMAS TREE AT FORT STREET CHURCH.

Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, found the vestry and parlors of Fort street Church filled to their utmost capacity with the children attending the Sunday School, and their parents and friends. The children sang some beautiful Christmas carols carefully practised for the occasion, under the able tuition of Prof. Yarnley. Selections from the second chapter of Luke were recited and prayer offered up by Mr. Cruzan. Then the distribution of Christmas gifts from the tree took place, and who can measure the happiness that filled the breast of each for all were remembered. Prof. Yarnley received a handsome present, and the Rev. J. A. Cruzan was the recipient of two beautifully frosted Christmas cakes. Between three and four hundred adults were present. The following is the list of teachers: Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hall, Mrs. E. O. Hall, Miss Nellie Judd, Mr. Bowen, Miss McIntyre, Miss Needham, Mrs. F. Cooke, Miss Moore, Mr. Shaw, Misses B. and J. Parke, Mrs. J. Y. Dickson, Miss H. Chamberlain, Miss Emmes, Miss Jones, Miss Royce, Miss King, Miss Pratt, Mrs. J. Waterhouse, Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

In the morning was crowded by the children who had come to offer a Children's Service of praise to the Lord for His mercies. Mr. Cruzan told them in his address that now was the time to improve their Tongues, Tastes, and Tempers, illustrating his meaning by a blackboard diagram. The service was interspersed by some beautiful hymns sung by the children. In the evening a Christmas Praise Service was held. The address was short and to the point. Amongst the anthems, Jubilate was sung in public for the first time, it being specially composed for the occasion by Mr. Wray Taylor. It was indeed beautifully rendered by the choir, and will take high rank as a musical composition. At the

KAUMAKAPILI SUNDAY SCHOOL EXHIBITION.

The regular quarterly exhibition of the Kaumakapili district Sunday Schools, which was held last Sunday, commencing at 10:30 in the morning, was a complete success in every respect. The large church was filled to overflowing with children, teachers, and interested visitors. The mass of happy, smiling brown faces, interspersed with an occasional countenance of white, was a delightful spectacle. Mr. A. L. Smith, the assiduous superintendent of the schools, had the general direction of the services, and performed his duty with thorough efficiency. The exercises consisted of singing, recitations, and questions and answers. Ten schools exhibited, all doing extremely well. Our space will not admit of a review of each school, but the Maemae and Industrial schools may be noticed as entitled to special mention. Many of the hymns and recitations of the different schools were in the English language, correct pronunciation and distinct enunciation characterizing the rendering in nearly every instance. The whole exhibition was a credit to the schools, a credit to all concerned, and a credit to the country.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The steamer Madras arrived yesterday morning, 14 days from Port Townsend. She will leave in 3 or 4 days.

The Mokoli brought on Saturday from Koolau 175 bags sugar, 300 bags paddy and 500 bags rice.

The Lady Lampson's passage was only 15 days.

KAHULUI NOTES.

The schr Emma Claudina, Capt. Natson, arrived on 16th inst. from Eureka with a cargo red wood lumber, for the H. C. Co.

The brig Pomare, Capt. Drew, sailed Dec. 20 for San Francisco with 2,170 bags sugar, weighing 254,380 lbs. and 113 hides, valued at $16,836.40.

The brig Hazard, Capt. Paulsen, sailed Dec. 22 for Port Townsend, to bring back a cargo of lumber for Capt. Hobron.

KOHALA NOTES.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

In two weeks time the railroad will be finished to Niuli, the terminus, and Judge Hart's sugar, which his mill is now busy in making, will be transported to Mahukona by rail, for shipment to Honolulu by steamer. The Judge has business tact enough to see the advantages of this way of getting his sugars to market, in preference to depending upon sailing vessels, as do some of our plantations. Here we have had three schooners lying at different sheltered (?) points in the district, for from a week to ten days each, waiting for weather that would allow the shipment of cargo.

We did not have such an exciting time over the assessment of taxes as did our friends in Hilo, but the appeal board reduced the absurd assessments of the astute Pilipo, 20, 25, and sometimes even 50 per cent. Why will not Government pay more attention to the selection of men of sense and judgment to the important post of Assessor?

The recent rains have been copious, and crops are looking finely.

HILO.

(From our own Correspondent.)

On the 16th instant, the schooners Ida Schnauer and Mary Dodge arrived here—the former 16 days from San Francisco, and the latter 21 days from Humboldt. The Ida Schnauer has a full cargo of merchandise, and 4 cabin and 13 steerage passengers. The Mary Dodge has a full cargo of red wood lumber for this market. On the night of the 16th a sailor of the Ida Schnauer was caught smuggling four tins of opium ashore. He was sentenced to one week imprisonment and fined $1 and $2 costs.

Weather good; volcano reported active.

Our new Road Supervisor seems to be exerting himself manfully, and new bridges are going up in the place of those swept away by the last storm. Some of the worst gulches have been fixed, and it looks as though we are really going to have something done.

WEST MAUI.

(From our own Correspondent.)

H. R. H. Princess Kamakacha has made Lahaina another visit. She again gave valuable aid to those in charge of the fund for repairs on Waince Church. She gave another concert Thursday evening, and she was the leading spirit in a fair which was held in the Church Friday evening.

The mail for Australia per City of Sydney, closes at 11 o'clock this morning.

Last night the Harmony Lodge, I. O. G. T., held an election of officers.

CHRISTMAS 1882 is past—and it has been more generally observed as a holiday than any preceding one so we have been told.

There were not many drunks locked up yesterday at the Police station, although many were seen under the influence of liquor in the streets.

The Band concert yesterday afternoon was listened to by an enormous crowd of appreciative listeners. The unusually lengthy and attractive programme was gone through to the satisfaction and pleasure of everyone. The taste of the selections being popular all were satisfied.

SATURDAY night in Fort Street Church afforded a glimpse at many varied characters and scenes. The streets were full of people, and all the shops that were open were full of purchasers. For a wonder very few were seen in the saloons.

WILLIAM D. BAMBER begs to notify his friends and the public generally that he has made permanent arrangement with Messrs. Ashley & Co. to superintend the baggage department.
